INVESTMENTS, RISKS AND PERFORMANCE

Principal Investment Strategies. The Fund normally invests at least 80% of its assets in municipal money market securities issued by the State of New York, or any of its political subdivisions, agencies, or instrumentalities, or by other governmental units (such as U.S. territories), the interest from which is exempt from federal income tax other than the alternative minimum tax and exempt from New York State and New York City personal income taxes, and which are determined by the portfolio managers to present minimal credit risk. The Fund also invests in tender option bonds.

Principal Risk Summaries. In addition to risks related to general economic conditions that may negatively affect the value of your investment in the Fund, such as market cycles, inflation, and investor sentiment, your investment is subject to the following risks. Please remember that an investment in a mutual fund is: not guaranteed to achieve its investment goal; subject to investment risks, including possible loss of money; not a deposit with a bank; and not insured or guaranteed by the FDIC or any government agency.

- Credit Risk. The issuer of a debt security or counterparty on certain investments may be unable or unwilling to pay interest and principal when due or meet its obligations to the Fund. The value of an investment may decline if its issuer or the Fund's counterparty defaults or if its credit quality deteriorates.
- Interest Rate Risk. When interest rates go up, the value of debt securities tends to fall. When interest rates go down, interest earned on debt securities may decline. The longer the terms of the debt securities held by the Fund, the more the Fund is subject to interest rate risk.
- Money Market Fund Risk. Although, like most money market funds, the Fund seeks to maintain a constant net asset value ("NAV") of $1.00 per share, there is no guarantee that the Fund will be able to do so. The SEC recently adopted amendments to its rules relating to money market funds. Among other changes, the amendments impose more stringent average maturity limits, higher credit quality standards and new liquidity requirements on money market funds. While these amendments are designed to further reduce the risks associated with investments in money market funds, they also may reduce a money market fund's yield potential.
- Municipal Money Market Fund Risk. The market for tax-exempt municipal money market securities is not as broad as the market for taxable money market securities, and the liquidity of the Fund therefore may not be equal to that of a fund that invests principally in taxable money market securities.
- Municipal Securities Risk. The value of municipal securities may be more sensitive to certain adverse conditions than other fixed income securities. Certain municipal securities may be or become highly illiquid. Illiquidity may be exacerbated from time to time by market or economic events. Municipal securities may lose their tax-exempt status if certain legal requirements are not met, or if federal or state tax laws change.
- New York Municipal Securities Risk. Because the Fund invests primarily in securities of issuers located in New York, the value of the Fund's shares is highly vulnerable to adverse conditions affecting New York, and may be more volatile than the values of funds that invest in securities issued by issuers located in a number of states. Although New York has a diverse economy, its economy relies significantly on the financial, travel, tourism, and service industries, and the manufacturing of published goods, apparel, chemicals, food products, furniture, machinery, paper products, and textiles.
