What you need to know:

Sprint announced that it has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire the 49 percent of Clearwire that it does not currently own.

Clearwire provides 4G wireless broadband services to retail customers through its CLEAR brand and wholesale 4G services to other companies, including Sprint.

The acquisition of Clearwire will strengthen Sprint' s competitive position as we continue to deploy 4G LTE across the nation.

Talking Points

At Sprint, we believe our offer to buy the additional portion of Clearwire is better than Dish Network' s counter-proposal.

Dish' s per-share offer, though higher than Sprint' s offer, depends on various complex conditions and other transactions taking place, so it is uncertain when or even if it could ever be completed. Sprint' s offer does not contain any such conditions.

Dish' s offer also ignores Sprint' s rights as an existing majority owner of Clearwire, as well as other existing contracts and spectrum use agreements.

The Sprint proposal is the best way to maximize the value of Clearwire' s spectrum and efficiently deploy it, as we look to create a more competitive wireless communications environment for the benefit of U.S. consumers.

FAQs/Scripting

I have heard that Dish Network is hoping to out-bid Sprint' s offer to buy Clearwire. Is Sprint' s offer still viable?

Sprint believes its $2.97-per-share offer announced in mid-December represents the best option for Clearwire investors and customers. Unlike the Dish proposal, Sprint' s offer is not entangled with complex conditions and therefore offers a simpler, more viable and more immediate resolution for Clearwire shareholders. Sprint looks forward to closing its transaction with Clearwire and realizing the many benefits our combination would bring to consumers across the country.

What would Sprint's purchase of Clearwire mean to me?

Sprint has announced a definitive agreement to acquire Clearwire. If you are a Sprint customer, you should not expect any changes. The most important thing for you to know, is that you don't need to do anything now. If you're a Clearwire customer, your service with will continue as usual until the transaction closes, which is subject to customary approvals and is expected to happen in mid-2013. At that time, you will receive helpful information about any changes that may affect you

Why is Sprint doing this?

Sprint plans to use the resources it is acquiring from Clearwire to continue its network enhancements and to strengthen its competitive position.

When will all of this transition take place?

Sprint and Clearwire are currently working on finalizing transition plans. After the transaction is complete, Sprint will provide you with more details about the transition plan, timing for your area and your options. In the meantime, your services will remain the same and you can get support by contacting your current Clearwire support numbers.

As a current Sprint customer, I am experiencing problems with my service (in xxx market). Will this acquisition make the network better? Will it make the network worse to have more customers come onto Sprint?

Sprint is actively working to strengthen the network in your area. This acquisition is expected to enable the company to be more aggressive in completing network enhancements to provide a better customer experience.

Will the customers' experience be different because of the change? Better voice quality? Data speeds? Wireless Coverage?

Sprint is committed to providing superior customer service and consistently earns top industry rankings among respected external sources for customer experience, corporate responsibility, products and services.

Former Clearwire customers transitioning to Sprint will have increased access to products, services and support through the company's 3,500 retail locations nationwide.

Through Network Vision, Sprint is consolidating multiple network technologies into one new, seamless network with the goal of increasing efficiency and enhancing network coverage, call quality and data speeds for customers across the United States. In addition to deploying an enhanced 3G network, Sprint is rolling out 4G LTE across the nation.

While no one will have to change their current plans immediately, after the transaction has closed customers will be able to take advantage of Sprint plans which include unlimited mobile to mobile and unlimited data while on the Sprint network.

What should I do if I have more questions or concerns?

The most important thing to remember is that, for now, you don't need to do anything; you'll continue to interact with Clearwire the way you always have. Eventually, you will receive detailed information from Sprint telling you everything you need to know about the transition, including how to have your questions answered.

I was at Sprint before and switched to Clearwire due to service issues. I have no interest in moving back to Sprint. What are my options?

We're very sorry that you had a negative experience with Sprint. We have been working diligently to improve service in your area to provide superior service to our customers. We would like you to become and remain a customer of Sprint and encourage you to reconsider Sprint in the future as a part of this transition. Sprint will use assets from Clearwire to improve its service. Also, you might be interested to know that the American Customer Service Index has named Sprint the most improved company in customer satisfaction, across all industries, for the past two years in a row.

Will I be able to keep my Clear service from Clearwire after the transition? Does Sprint have a similar plan?

All customers will transition to one of Sprint's plans at some point in time. We are reviewing all of Clearwire's customer plans and how they compare to existing Sprint plans. We will do our best to ensure customers have comparable plans available to them. We encourage you to go to the Sprint website and review our current plans to learn more about Sprint's competitive plans, including our Truly Unlimited data plans - while on the Sprint network - and great line-up of devices.

What do I do if I need technical support for my Clear service?

Continue to contact Clearwire as usual through the clear.com website or by calling 888-888-3113.

Will I be able to use my same (Clearwire) data devices after the transition?

Until the transaction closes, you do not have to take any action. We are in the process of reviewing how devices will be handled in the transition. Sprint will provide more information specific to each customer once the transaction is completed.

How does Sprint' s device portfolio compare?

From feature handsets to smartphones, tablets and mobile broadband cards, customers will find that Sprint carries a robust line-up of brands and devices at competitive prices.

My contract with Clearwire is up and I would like to move over to Sprint on my own prior to any future migration process. What is the process for that?

Clearwire customers whose contracts have expired can move to Sprint at any time, prior to the closing of the transaction or the beginning of the transition process, without incurring an early termination charge. [Sprint: Provide details and assist with process.]

[Clearwire: Transfer customer to Sprint care.]

My contract with Clearwire is not due to expire for a while. What are my options? Will I be able to break my contract and not incur an Early Termination Fee (ETF)?

Your contract with Clearwire will remain in force until its termination date or until your transition to Sprint, whichever is later. Please contact Clearwire for additional information regarding your contract. We expect there would be no Early Termination Fee if you decide to move to another carrier at the time of transition. However, we want you to become a Sprint customer and will be providing you with your options in future communications. We think you' ll be pleased by the change: We are in the process of upgrading our network services, have award winning customer service, and have competitive plans and great devices. After the transaction closes, Sprint will be sending you more details about the change and the options available to you.

Will I still be able to go to my local Clearwire store?

There will be no immediate changes in the way you do business with Clearwire.

How do I continue to get service on my Clearwire account and assistance with any billing issues or needs?

You should continue to contact Clearwire for account and billing assistance the same way you always have, through the “My Account” section of clear.com or by calling Clearwire customer service, toll-free, at 888-888-3113.
